

HISTORY OF THE SIXTH INDIANA

A CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

I would say to my old comrades in arms, and friends generally, that I have concluded to print the sketches together in pamphlet form if I receive sufficient encouragement to justify the same in the way of subscription. Before I do so, it will be revised, re-arranged, with many additions, and everything placed under its proper heading; besides giving a full list of the names of all the men in the Sixth Regiment. Those residing outside of the city can obtain a copy of the book by addressing me at Madison. Wishing to know about how many copies I can dispose of, those desiring the same will please notify me as soon as possible. I have secured the services of John W. Linck, Esq., to solicit subscriptions in Madison, and attend to all business in connection with the work. Hoping that my friends will give the matter all the attention due it, I am, yours, &c.,

A. J. GRAYSON.

A. J. Grayson's history of the Sixth Indiana Cavalry promises to be the most interesting work ever produced in these diggings. The Sixth, was recruited in this part of the state, and its history is of especial local interest. Mr. Grayson, will print a directory of prominent business firms of Madison, on the last pages and cover of the book, to which fact we call your undivided attention

Vernon Banner
THE SIXTH INDIANA REGIMENT—
Vernon Banner: "Lieut. A. J. Grayson, of the 6th Indiana, now foreman of the Madison Courier news room, is giving through the columns of that paper an exceedingly interesting and graphic history of that regiment during the first three months' campaign."

The series of sketches of the Sixth Indiana in West Virginia will close with that of this week, the best and most interesting thus far published.—The return of the regiment from Carrick's Ford to their old camp on Laurel Hill; a night's march for Webster, en route home, with attending laughable incidents; the return of the regiment home; a detailed account of the reception of the returning volunteers in Madison; proceedings of citizens' meeting the evening before the boys came home, etc., etc. Mr. Grayson will revise, rearrange and put the entire work in book form. We hope our friends will encourage him by subscribing for it, as it will be sold at a low price, within the reach of all.

A. J. GRAYSON, writing for the Madison Courier, under the head of the "Three Month's Campaign," has the following in relation to a soldier of this city:

On the evening of July 11th, heavy skirmishing took place at Bealington, near Laurel Mountain, West Virginia, when Sylvester Brown, of Columbus, Ind., a member of Capt. A. H. Abbott's company, 6th Ind., was severely wounded, the ball passing clear through his body, striking him in the right breast and coming out between his shoulders. Strange to relate, Brown walked back to Doctor Schussler's quarters to have the wound dressed, after which it was all the Dr. could do to keep him in his tent, telling him to lie down and keep quiet or he would die. Brown said he wanted to go back and get revenge. He was sent home on furlough. When I returned home I saw Brown—then Capt. Brown—at the head of his company.
